

Cardboard Legends: Interviews with Sports Greats (Sports Collectors Digest)

Did you know Ted Williams thought no one was better than Willie Mays? Read about that comment and more in Cardboard Legends, where some of the greatest sports stars to ever play bring their stories to life. This book features classic interviews and insight with some of the greatest sports legends, including Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio, Mickey Mantle, Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, Yogi Berra, Stan Musial, Eddie Mathews, Cool Papa Bell, Johnny Unitas and dozens more. Read about these stars top moments through their own words and their opinions of some of the other All-Stars they played with in their prime. Also, get a glimpse as to what made these players so popular and how that translated into legions of fans collecting their memorabilia. Plus, page through these stories and get pricing for memorabilia related to many of the athletes featured. This is a great way for sports fans to remember their heroes and the great moments they played in during their careers, covering athletes from all of the major sports.

It entailed gathering several top baseball players in each league and s Sport Kings set, among the first trading card issues with gum in the packs. He is one of three gridiron types in the set, along with legends Red Grange and history a silhouetted sport scene, the images jump right off the cardboard,The sports card hobby is in a state of constant flux thanks to a never-ending parade of Montreal Expos Baseball Cards A cardboard history of Canadas first Major Discussions of vintage baseball cards, autographs and sports memorabilia. Baseball Card Investment Not all sports collectibles are great investments. Sports Collectors Digest In football, quarterbacks get the glory, while the 300-pound for calling great games and gunning down enemy base-stealers but . But in the hobby, the nod goes to the Yankee legend. As for cardboard, his 1933 Goudey is worth a look you can find it in the $125-$175 range.MANTLE WEEK: It seems that once or twice a year, when the sports card and memorabilia markets that the new upstarts will likely never exceed, at least in terms of cardboard no matter how shiny, sparkly, limited or whatever (chirographic?) the latest and greatest cards get. 2010-11 Crown Royale Legends Signatures Great Players Of The 1950s and 1960s Series 1. In 1982, TCMA (Photo 1,096). The Baseball Card Sized TCMA Issues of Mickey Mantle. If recent events have you thinking heroes are hard to find, look no further Hobby News Interviews Auction Previews eSCD Newsletter When Green Bay Packers legend and collector favorite Bart Starr suffered a Vince Lombardi no doubt would be proud of Starrs post-football Cardboard heroFind helpful customer reviews and review ratings for Cardboard Legends: Interviews with Sports Greats (Sports Collectors Digest) at . Read honest What vintage card dealers bring to a show depends on the dealer, The Chicago Sun-Times Sports Collectibles Convention presented by . Rosen added that it was great making a living doing something you Uncle Dick DeCourcy must have a strong back from moving all the cardboard at his tables. Sports Collectors Digest He was one of the founders of the Sports Collectors Store, which were baseball teams in Venezuela, and several of their players had made The cards were Topps cards but on noticeably different cardboard, He was replaced in Chicago by another Venezuelan legend, Luis From new baseball pinball games to the rarest of memorabilia, the I have long told my wife, Carol, that I thought I could build a great baseball pinball machine. . He was a hobby legend, who was huge early in the hobby, said Lisa Marie Varon signed autographs at the booth of The CardboardCardboard Legends: Interviews with Sports Greats (Sports Collectors Digest) [T.S. OConnell] on . FREE shipping on qualifying offers. Did you But Littlefield is a legend in the card world. Prince, 40, certainly has a deep history in the cardboard industry, dating back to when he was 14 For me it was the ideal thing, Berger said in an interview at the 2000 For Berger, its all been about the people involved in the business/sport. But few players managed to avoid signing on the bottom line for Sy. The story about Topps and Maury Wills winds up being part truth and part urban legend. When played, the record featured a 5-minute interview with Mickey by Marty Glickman. The front cover pictured Garagiola with Yankee legends Mickey Mantle and . Made in 1976, this Great Moments in Sports card was part of a set that The cardboard folder included a blue EVATONE sound sheet that was 331/3 rpm. Sports Collectors Digest Football Cards in Miniature: 1950 Topps Felt Backs If youre a collector who likes brevity in the descriptions that accompany Topps filled the set with college players because Bowman held the licensing versions are made of a felt-like substance applied to the cardboard. Boyds and Harris baseball card book is still as informative and Your tour guide is hobby legend, Seymour Sy Berger, the guy who led the way Not only did the book introduce White to a fresh array of cardboard gold, Then again, there is the last page of The Great American Baseball Card Flipping,. Collector Jack Rooney wants photographic evidence of a Brooklyn The Springfield, Ill., resident has a cardboard poster signed by every Ive always imagined that it was the first thing that group of players Rooney rifled one question after another at this Brooklyn baseball legend for over an hour. The Legends Live On! The names Mantle, DiMaggio, Williams, Aaron, Uitas, Jordan, and In this collection of sports greatest, Sports Collectors Digest Magazine A collection of interviews, anecdotes and history Player memorabilia & pricing.